WELCOME TO INSPECTORS OF THE JACKSON HIGHWAY

Officials Who Plan Tour From Chicago to Be Entertained at Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 19.—The Hoosier Motor Club of Indiana has completed plans for the entertainment of the Jackson highway officials who will leave Chicago tomorrow morning for an inspection of the route as far south as Nashville, Tenn. The party will be in Indianapolis Wednesday and a meeting will be held that evening under the auspices of the motor club.

The highway as planned extends from Chicago to New Orleans, passing through Hammond, Lafayette, Indianapolis, Seymour, Salem, New Albany, Ind.; Louisville, Bardonia, Glasgow, Scottsville, Ky.; Gallatin, Nashville, Columbia, Tenn.; Athens, Knoxville, Hamilton, Ala.; Columbus, Macon, Laurel, Hattiesburg, Miss., and Covington and New Orleans, La.

A large stretch of the road, according to the Indiana officials of the highway association, has already been completed and the remainder is expected to be in shape within three months. The officials say the representatives, governors and business men of the states through which the highway passes are backing the project.

John P. Wilbourn of Raphine, Rock-bridge county, Va., a traveling salesman, was killed, when his auto upset. His neck was broken, skull crushed and collar bone fractured.

The Lassitude of Spring

is another name for the lazy liver—a liver that is weary of the work of eliminating all the accumulated poisons of a heavy winter diet. Health and strength in the Spring come from a return to simple, nutritious, easily digested foods. The food that puts you on your feet and brings bounding buoyancy to the jaded muscles and worn-out nerves is Shredded Wheat Biscuit—a whole wheat food that builds new tissue and keeps the bowels healthy and active. Eat it with berries, or other fresh fruits for a few days and see how much better you feel.

BULGARIANS START ADVANCE ON ALLIES

Offensive Movement Inaugurated in Florina and Monastir Regions.

GREAT ENTENTE DRIVE BELIEVED TO BE NEAR

French, British and Serbs Have 680,000 Troops—Enemy Force Estimated at 300,000.

PARIS, June 19, 10:30 a.m.—The Havas correspondent at Saloniki telegraphs that news has just been received there that Bulgarian troops in the region of Florina and Monastir have begun an advance.

Monastir is in southwestern Serbia, near the Greek frontier. Florina is across the border, about seventy-five miles west of Saloniki. There has been no important fighting along this front since the conclusion of the Serbian campaign, although local engagements have taken place from time to time.

Drive Expected Soon.

SALONIKI, May 28.—The allied offensive in Macedonia, originally scheduled for mid-May and postponed on account of the condition of the Serbian army on its arrival in Corfu, is now confidently anticipated toward the end of June or, at the latest, early in July.

The activities of the Bulgarians east of the Struma the past week and a gradually increasing extension of aerial operations have led to the assumption from time to time that Gen. Sarrafi's plans might be hastened and the allied attack begun at once. This morning, however, the general opinion is that the activities of the Bulgarians are merely in the nature of taking up their position in their line and that they will not precipitate an attack.

Cholera Among Serbs.

The outbreak of cholera among the Serbs on their arrival in Corfu proved a mixed disadvantage. It made their transport to Saloniki in time to participate in an offensive in May impossible. Moreover, it reduced their numbers very materially, a great many more Serbs died than will ever be known, not simply of cholera, but from enteritis, dysentery, and other ailments.

The Serbian army was in far worse shape after its retreat through Albania than it was before. The entire force needed full re-equipment and the recruits from Serbia and many of the leading officers were dead or dying. The army was in a state of demoralization and the work of re-making the Serbian army was pushed as rapidly as possible.

United Action Possible.

This decision, however, entailed an alteration in the general plans of the allies. Instead of striking a first blow in the Balkans to draw off the German reserves from the west front, where a decisive action was being planned in France, it was decided to make the Macedonian offensive the main effort.

The Serbs are now safely in Macedonia. Already they have begun to take up their positions on the frontiers of their native land, from the Vardar west to Lake Prespa. Some objection was at first raised to the occupation of the first line trenches by the Serbs. It was said that the Serbs had suffered enough and that every Serb in good physical shape was needed to re-establish the Serbian race, so nearly annihilated by the present and the two previous wars.

Would Enter as Conquerors.

On this point Prince Regent Alexander was firm. "How can we re-enter our fatherland," he said to the Associated Press correspondent, "save as conquerors? Of what avail would it be to perpetuate a state of content to let others do their fighting? The offspring of one Serb who has been a hero is worth a hundred of those who, being able to fight, have stopped at home."

The second objection raised was that the Serbs once so close to their native land, could not be restrained and would upset the plans of the French general staff. "The men who faced two armies and were not crushed will not lose their heads," he said. "We Serbs were patient for five centuries under the Turkish yoke. We may be trusted to wait our hour."

130,000 Serbian Troops.

There are now some 130,000 first-class Serbian troops in Macedonia. All the old and the unit have been weeded. What is left is an army tried and capable. Roughly, there are some 350,000 British and French in Saloniki today. The major portion are British. Now that the transportation of the Serbs has been completed, transports are beginning to arrive every day with new contingents of French troops—despite Verdun. Gen. Maunier has gone to Saloniki to supervise the selection and embarkment of the larger part of the British armies concentrated there when a further advance is regarded as possible. According to expert estimate 200,000 men should be available from the British. Their transportation has already begun.

By mid-June, therefore, there will be some 650,000 men on the ground ready for the Macedonian offensive. Expert estimates hold 600,000 to be more than sufficient for every purpose of attack.

Enemy Troop Situation.

When the Macedonian offensive was first discussed it was assumed that a certain number of Turks would be available to assist the Bulgarians. But since that time the Turks have accumulated troubles of their own at home and have no stomach for widely extending their line. The Austrians need every possible man for the offensive against the Italians; there are no Austrians in front of Saloniki. The Germans, little by little, have withdrawn their forces from Macedonia to fill up the holes in the home lines made by the losses before Verdun. Only four German divisions remain in the neighborhood of Saloniki. Even the Bulgarians cannot give their entire attention to Gen. Sarrafi's armies, as they have to keep a watchful eye on Rumania.

They have, therefore, according to belief here, only some 300,000 men at most to be counted on to repel an attack from the south, launched by the 680,000 allies.

Position of Greek Army.

The Greeks at present writing are still what they are pleased to call neutral. The morale of their army is greatly reduced by a long and irritating vacillation founded in internal politics. Their equipment badly needs renewing. They have little ammunition, and no way to get more save from the entente allies. They have no money to pay their soldiers, nor have they paid them in months. But they are brave soldiers and have proved it. The mobilization has served to drill them thoroughly so that they could be very quickly got into fighting shape. Duly equipped by the allies, some 200,000 Greeks could be counted on should the Athenian politicians decide to take a chance.

Ex-Premier Venizelos knows more about the Greeks than any one else and he said recently in private conversation: "One decided allied victory anywhere and no power on earth could hold the Greeks back from joining the entente." Should the victory in question be against the Bulgarians, the ancient enemies of the Greeks, there is no doubt of it.

Military Tractor Being Exhibited on the Senate Office Building Lawn.

A large aeroplane, military tractor, with twin motors and capable of a speed of 100 miles an hour, faced members of the United States Senate when they reached their office building this morning, their minds already full of the startling developments following President Wilson's call to 100,000 national guardsmen last night.

The big fighting aircraft was sent to the national aerial coast patrol commission by the Aero Club of America, and is especially equipped with pontoons, to show senators that it is another type of flying machine, by virtue of the pontoons being added, which can be used in the combination life-saving and military patrol system advocated by the commission.

Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary is chairman, with Senator Charles E. Johnson of Maine and Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas among its distinguished members.

Is Quickly Assembled.

In bringing down the military tractor and planting it on the lawn of the Senate office building, the commission duplicated its performance with the hydroaeroplane which was placed under the shadow of the House office building, as both machines were brought in at night, assembled by grueling night's work, and ready for exhibition long before the town was awake the following morning.

Last night's exploit was delayed by the call for the National Guard, as the officers in charge of the machine had to rush downtown and report for orders over the long-distance telephone. They are Lieut. Ripley Bowman, flying corps, New York National Guard, and Capt. Ralph L. Taylor of the Connecticut National Guard. Mr. Bowman is connected with the Aero Club of America, and has been flying for five years, while Capt. Taylor has just finished a course at the Curtiss flying school at Newport News, Va.

Placed There by Permission.

The big military tractor is on the lawn of the Senate office building, through the official courtesy of Senator Lee S. Overman of North Carolina, chairman of the Senate committee on rules, and the co-operation of Elliot Woods, superintendent of the Capitol. This is the first time in American history that an aeroplane has been exhibited on the grounds of the United States Senate.

Moving Picture Library.

From the Indianapolis News.

By co-operation with the motion picture producers of the state, Iowa maintains a film library which is expected to be an important part in the educational system of the state in years to come. Notable events in Iowa such as the state fair, the annual "one-million-dollar" stock parade, big foot ball games, etc., are taken by motion picture companies, which exhibit the pictures until they are no longer commercially profitable, when they are turned over to the state, which the historical department of the state, who preserves them for educational uses. Street scenes in important cities, public buildings, the operation of industrial plants, the Keokuk dam and other aspects of the social and industrial activities of the state are shown in the collection, which includes about 50,000 feet of film. The plan of collecting and preserving films which portray social and industrial conditions of the day suggests possible revolutionary changes in teaching methods, particularly in the teaching of history. Actual pictures will convey to posterity an idea of the state of a preceding age more graphically and economically than books or lectures. Taken in connection with the phonograph, motion pictures may leave to following ages a transcript of the events of the times and an impression of its celebrities far clearer than is now possible.
